Further Screening Tests Physicians May Recommend

Fecal Occult Blood Test or Fecal Immunochemical Test: Annual, noninvasive methods can distinguish tiny traces of intestinal bleeding caused by cancerous tumors or large polyps. Patients use a home test kit to collect stool samples and return them to a physician for evaluation. Based on results, patients may be referred for a colonoscopy.

For more information about colorectal cancer and screenings, visit a Gastroenterologist in your area.